

GENERAL'S TO LOSE THREE

WASHINGTON AND LEE WILL HAVE GRID VETERANS BACK

Shultz, Harrison and Bagley Will Not Return to College, but Other Footballers Will.

LEXINGTON, VA., December 4.— Of the fourteen varsity players who were awarded monograms for their services to the Washington and Lee football team during the past season, only three will be lost by graduation in the spring.

Captain Shultz has played the prescribed four years allowed by the eligibility rules, and has fought his last fight on the gridiron for the glory of the Generals. During all his four years he has been a tower of strength at tackle, and in his last years his playing was very creditable. When he was first initiated into the game at Washington and Lee, An all-Southern man, and all-American in several picks, his loss will be a keen one.

Though neither have played out their allotted time, End Harrison and Quarter Back Bagley will not return to the university next fall. The former was a particularly good defensive man, and the latter, though a mere mite of 125 pounds, was one of the cleverest and coolest field generals that ever drew on a cheated shoe.

The other members of the team have all announced their intention of returning to the gridiron. With C. Y. Young returned to the game, the backfield will be stronger than ever. Barrett, Sweetland and Sorrells are all extra-good backs, and the main difficulty will be in finding a tackle to fill Shultz's shoes by the blue. This may not, however, be as hard as would seem at first, as several of the recruits showed us well toward the last of this season.

WASHINGTON AND LEE WAS FAR ABOVE OPPONENTS' SCORE

During the football season the Washington and Lee football team scored a total of 172 points as against its opponents' 60. In all, the Generals averaged twenty-two touchdowns and one point as against the forty-four of West Virginia University. In only three games was the White and Blue scored on. The record is unique in that the Generals scored no points, nor were any points scored against them by means of drop-kicks.

Individually Haifaon Barrett led the team in scoring, having crossed opponents' goal lines for a total of six touchdowns. He also scored a touchdown which did not count due to the forfeiture of the game by West Virginia. Captain-elect Young came second, with a total of twenty points, including three touchdowns and eight goals after touchdowns, although he only participated in four games. Sweetland and Bagley are tied for third honors, with a score of twenty-four points each to their credit.

The complete individual record runs as follows:

Player	T	G. A. T.	Total
Barrett	4	6	36
Young	4	8	26
Sweetland	4	4	24
Bagley	4	12	24
Sorrells	4	6	18
Ignacio	4	0	12
Harrison	4	0	12
Graham	1	6	8
Shultz	1	1	6
Barard	1	0	6
Total	25	21	172

EXPERTS RANK MAYER HIGH

in a football way that he cannot do—and do wonderfully well. His record shows that he has averaged an average of twenty-two points per game.

Against Yost's University of Michigan team Deprato played like a man possessed. He ripped to shreds the heavy Matze and Blue line, he sliced the ends almost at will, he outpointed the Michigan boomer at least ten yards in each exchange, and when the final whistle blew the score was: Deprato, 22; Michigan, 6. This "Wildfire" half back of the Wabash scored all the points against Michigan, making three touchdowns, three goals after touchdowns, and one goal from field.

Mayer didn't get nation-wide publicity this season merely because he played on one of the so-called "minor" elevens. His total of 102 points scored in seven games speaks for itself, and the conversation becomes quite loud when it is remembered that Mayer played against Yale and Harvard as well as the most powerful elevens in the South. They throw back the plunges of this 175 pound Southerner. He was amazingly successful in his end runs, and he had no peer on defensive play.

PARTRIDGES ARE SCARCE

Lynchburg Sportsmen Have Had Very Unsatisfactory Season in Field. Rabbits Are Abundant.

LYNCHBURG, VA., December 4.— Although almost ideal weather conditions have prevailed here recently for first rate shooting, sportsmen still return to Lynchburg with an almost general lack of game birds and rabbits. The hunters as a rule have been unable to find the birds, but the number of rabbits being killed is very large.

The rabbits for several years have been protected by the same law which protects game birds, and this has resulted in a marvelous increase of the tribe. They have become so numerous that they are serious pests if not a menace to the residents of the rural districts, and not a few farmers are begging their friends to come to their farms and help them reduce the number.

The season for shooting game is open now in nearly all of the counties in this section of the state.

BOYS MAKE GOOD

Richmond Academy Second Team Well on Gridiron for First Season Out.

The Richmond Academy's second eleven has made an enviable record this season, having won six games and tied one, and only suffered defeat. The record of the little fellow is nothing short of phenomenal, as they had to perfect their own plays as the athletic director of the school had to give all of his time to the varsity. Manager Roden and Captain Valentine together with the whole team deserve much credit for the showing. The men for their preservation certainly deserve some reward, and it is thought that Dean Prince, in appreciation of their efforts, will give them tiny letters, and it is certainly due them.

The following scores show for them the splendid work done during the year:

Grace Street, 9; Richmond Academy, 29. Grace Street, 6; Richmond Academy, 18.

All Stars, 6; Richmond Academy, 18. Chamberlayne, 2; Richmond Academy, 13. Troop, 3; Boy Scouts, 6; Richmond Academy, 24. Chamberlayne, 6; Richmond Academy, 6. McGuire, 6; Richmond Academy, 6.

RACE HORSES ARE LIARS*PROMINENT TURFMAN IS NOT PLEASED WITH THEM

John E. Madden Says They Look Like Winners, and They Go Wrong in Big Races.

NEW YORK, December 4—"Owning horses is my drawback," sighed John E. Madden, one of the kings of the turf.

"Educated," bespoke the reporter.

"Well, horses are such liars, and they get a fellow in just awful bad with his friends at times," asserted Madden.

"Horses liars? How so?" I thought that lying was a trick of the tongue, and horses can't talk," exclaimed the reporter.

"That's right, those early talkers answered Madden, "but they act, and they can tell lies in their actions. Now, you know, that's the only way to judge the chance of a horse in a race—by his general condition and by his workout records. Am I right?"

"Quite right," said the reporter.

"Then there's the other hand, the horse may not show a tinge in his workouts, and then may go out and distance him to beat him in the race. They're such awful liars."

"But how do the ponies get the owner in bad?"

"Just through their lying," said Madden. "Every fellow who owns a horse has friends who fail to believe that horse in case there's a race, but the owner in his opinion of the horse has a chance to win."

HORSES DO NOT TELL TRUTH IN WORKOUTS.

"If the horse was telling the truth in his workouts, my friends, of course, cash in on them bets. But if the animal lied to me, my friends usually group together after the race and hold an indemnification meeting, to cover my losses."

"Then there's the reverse lie by the horse. If the pony doesn't do very well in his workouts, I tell the boys made up about him and point out that he made up the horse in his trials wouldn't get him in the money. Then the dratted animal may go into that spot and win by ten lengths, whereupon my friends refuse to speak to me or let me pass by because they didn't put them in on a winner. Then get the idea that I didn't want them to bet for fear they'd depress the odds and make my winnings smaller."

"What we owners go at is life," continued Madden, "that the owners of fast horses make a 'killing' each year in the betting stalls. I dare say that when
